Mr. C. W. Barden,

Dear Sir,—

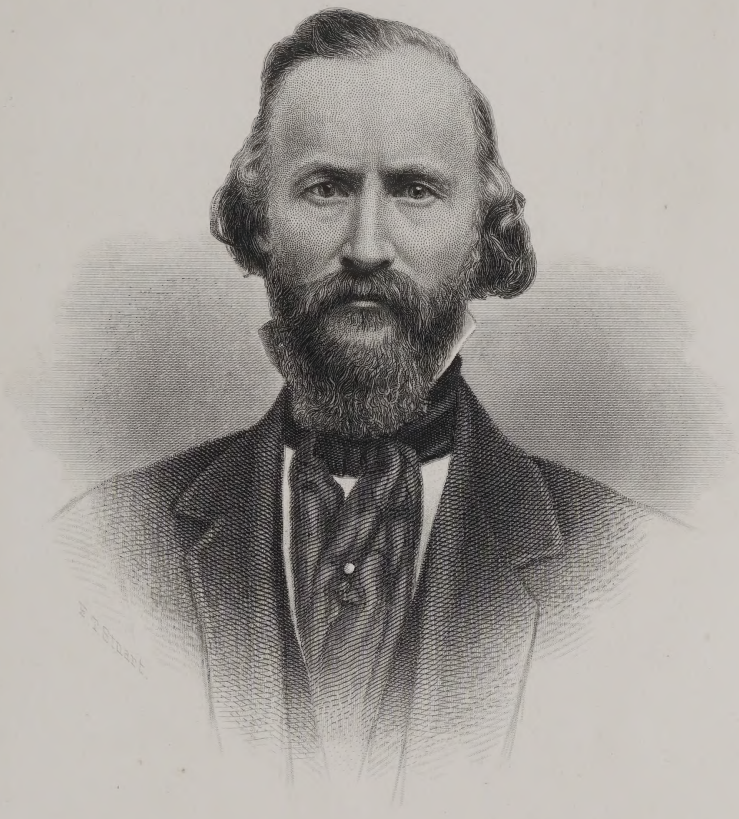
I send you by this mail a copy of the pamphlet to which you allude, which please accept with my compliments. Additional copies will cost, postage included, 33 ¢.

Copies of the Fitchburg School Report containing the same matter but without the illustrations, can be obtained gratis, by forwarding the postage (4 ¢.) to either J. F. Edgerly Supt.; or to myself.

The pamphlet is not a History in any proper sense. It is a growth and not the result of a well formed plan. At first I gathered the names of the graduates to be inserted as an appendix to the School Report; then I determined to trace each briefly since graduation; then I prefixed a condensed record of each teacher of the High School; finally I embraced the old Academy and its rivals in the plan.

I shall be glad if it proves a pleasure to the old scholars. My chief regret is that I can get no correct and full list of the pupils who between 1830 and 1866 pursued courses comparable with the present requirements for graduation.

Yours, R. G. Boling.



Susan S. Marshall

INTRODUCTION.

The events which cluster about the following names afford ample material for an interesting history of the High School and its predecessor, the Academy, but obvious limitations of space and time forbid such an attempt in the present paper. A few words of explanation and connection, however, will not be out of place.

The Fitchburg High School, as we now understand the term, dates from the spring of 1849, but as early as 1830 a private school with similar aims had been established in this city, and such a school was maintained by one teacher or another through each of the nineteen intervening years. To afford a permanent home for a school of this kind, and, quite probably, to attract suitable teachers to the town, a "High School Association" was formed, by which, in 1830, a building, commonly called the Academy, was erected, at an expense of about $1200, upon land donated by Zachariah Sheldon; the site was a part of the present High School grounds, but the building stood a little in front of the present edifice. It contained two rooms below and one above. The school held within its walls was termed at first the Fitchburg High School, in 1833 the Fitchburg Academy, in 1837 again the Fitchburg High School, and subsequently till 1849 the Fitchburg Academy. In the years 1835-6 and 7, and again in 1841, schools of the same general character were kept in the "Brick Chapel"* on Rollstone street, and in 1842-3 in the school building on the corner of West Main and School streets. In the following list the teachers of all these schools have been included, for the modern High School is the heir, if not the child, of them all.

*This building was later stripped of its brick casing and removed to the corner of North and Cherry streets, where it is now known as the Advent Chapel.

In these schools the number of students varied greatly. One of the early teachers now living speaks of a predecessor of his as having only eight, and of another as having but one student. The average for the first six years was 36. The range of study was quite wide, running from the common English branches through the higher English, Mathematics, French, Latin, Greek and Hebrew. Tuition ran from $3 to $7 per term of about eleven weeks. Of the score of gentlemen who taught these schools, more than half are known to have been college graduates.

As early as 1843 the School Committee of Fitchburg had expressed in their report a regret that so few of the young people from 16 to 21 were connected with the public schools. Again, in 1847, they alluded to the matter, thus: "We are not informed that the town has ever afforded an opportunity to young men or young women to obtain an education at the public expense, sufficient to enable them to keep a common school." In 1848, the Committee directly and strongly urged the establishment of a high school. "One great object to be obtained," they averred, "is facility for educating teachers for our common schools." The town subsequently voted to establish such a school as soon as a suitable teacher could be obtained, and, in preparation therefor, the Academy building was purchased and a room in the second story fitted up. Within another year three more rooms were added. In March, 1849, the first appropriation was made for the support of the High School.

Great care was used in the selection of a Principal, and to the wisdom of the Committee's choice the old scholars of Mr. Marshall testify to-day with affectionate veneration. At the outset the school was overwhelmed with applicants for admission, which fact occasioned the establishment of a somewhat high standard for entrance; 59 were admitted and by the end of the first year 82 were in attendance. The first set of regulations is of especial interest. The "principal Instructor" must be one who had been educated at some respectable college. No scholar could continue in the school more than five years. A thorough knowledge of Spelling, Reading, Writing, English Grammar, Modern Geography and Arithmetic were indispensable for admission. The course of study embraced a review of all these; Latin Grammar, Cæsar, Virgil and Cicero; Greek Grammar and Reader; French; Arithmetic, Algebra and Geometry; English Grammar; Ancient Geography; History; Rhetoric; Natural Philosophy, Chemistry and Physiology; Declamations and Compositions for male pupils, and Compositions for females. There were 44 weeks of school and eight of vacation in the year.

The school thus begun gave a high grade of education for the times to many who are now prominent men and women in our city. No records of its membership for many years are known to be in existence. It is certain that a student* entered Dartmouth College from it in 1851, "probably the first instance in the northern part of Worcester County of a young man having been fitted for college at the town school."§ At least a dozen† others fitted for college here (with some additional study under private tutors in some cases) before 1866, and still others must have made acquisitions in the school comparable with those which since 1866 have been honored with a diploma of graduation; but there seems to be no way of securing an accurate list of such students. The list of graduates, therefore, must begin with the year just named.

In 1859 the High School was removed to the High Street Grammar School building, where it continued to be held for ten years. In 1869 the present commodious and well arranged edifice was erected at an expense of about $60,000. The old Academy building, removed to make room for it, now forms a part of the rear of the Rollstone House.‡

At the annual town meeting in March, 1850, it was voted to establish a "second department of the High School;" the school thus provided for resembled a high school only in the two respects that admission depended somewhat on age, and that it was under the charge of the School Committee instead of the Prudential Committee of a district. It never did the work of a high school, but was the germ of our present grammar school system. In April, 1855, the town voted to abolish it and "to establish three schools of about the same grade denominated Grammar Schools." The attendance in this second department was at first 26, once rose to 71, and averaged for the five years 52. Its first, last, and only teacher was,

CHARLES LAMB.

Son of Joseph and Martha Lamb; born Jan. 25, 1822, in Oxford;* studied at Lawrence Academy, Groton; teacher seven or eight winters in Groton and Townsend; two years in New London, Conn.; Fitchburg, in district schools, 1848-9; in Second Department of the High School, 1850-5; in Day Street Grammar School, 1855-8 and 1861-6; since 1869 engaged in farming; married July 13, 1853, Sarah E. Bancroft; P. O. address, Townsend Harbor.

In the compilation of the following sketches the writer has received important aid from many correspondents and many residents of the city, to all of whom he is very grateful. Thanks are particularly due to Mr. J. F. D. Garfield of this city, for copies of Fitchburg papers from 1832 to 1848, without which the portion relating to the Academy could scarcely have been written.

The writer is sadly aware of the possibilities of inaccuracy attending the collection of such a mass of details. In case of the discovery of an erroneous statement or of an important omission, it would give him great pleasure to receive a true and full account. He invites graduates of the school to send to the Principal notice of any important event in the history of any graduate at the time of its occurrence. He has for several years requested members of retiring classes to send him on June 1 of each year memoranda of their addresses.

The number of graduates to date has been 261; the number of attendants upon the school has been far larger, of course. Is it not time that these old boys and girls of the school should be organized as an Alumni Association? Besides the general impulse to higher education and the pleasures of reunion which would spring from a vigorous society of this kind, there are certain definite objects toward which its attention could profitably be directed, a few of which are respectfully suggested:

(1.) The relief of the graduating class from the burden of the annual promenade concert;

(2) The establishment of a gymnasium or the requisites for military drill in connection with the school.

(3) The agitation of a plan to purchase part of the valley along Punch Brook, west of the school houses, as a play ground for the boys and girls of the city, particularly those of the neighboring schools;

(4) The enrichment of the school library with books for consultation and the ornamentation of the rooms by pictures and models of historic or classic interest.

Any visitor to the Boston Latin and English High School building, Boston, can see to his heart's content what large-hearted alumni may do for their beloved alma mater, even when she has not the proud rank of a college.

FITCHBURG ACADEMY BUILDING,

Erected 1830.

TEACHERS OF THE FITCHBURG HIGH SCHOOL

AND THE

FITCHBURG ACADEMY, 1830—1848.

BENAIAH COOKE—1830.

Teacher of Keene, N. H., "Academic School" about 1828–30; opened a school near the corner of Main and Putnam streets, Fitchburg; took charge of the Academy when that building was erected in 1830; subsequently became a bookseller in this city; afterwards returned to Keene, N. H., where he published the "Cheshire Republican and Farmer's Museum;" about 1842 sold this paper and soon after established the "Philanthropist," which he retained until his death at Keene, August, 8, 1852; he was then 51 or 52 years of age; he married in 1831 Rebecca Harrington, of Keene, who continued the "Philanthropist" a few years after her husband's death until it was sold and merged with the "New Hampshire Sentinel;" she is still living but in feeble health, at Keene, N. H.

EZRA WALKER REED—1830-2.

Son of Leonard and Cynthia (Goodnow) Reed; born May 9, 1805, in Langdon, N. H.; was an assistant of Mr. Cooke at the beginning of the school in the Academy, and in the winter of 1831-2 had one of his own there; in the following spring was in partnership with William Torrey in the Academy; afterwards a clerk in the post-office and a merchant in this city; was editor of the Fitchburg Sentinel from its commencement in 1838 to near the time of his death; married (1) Mary, daughter of Elisha Garfield of Langdon, N. H., who died Oct. 14, 1832; married (2) Mary Jane, daughter of Zachariah Sheldon of Fitchburg; died in this city Jan. 9, 1840.

William Torrey—1832.

Son of John and Sally (Richardson) Torrey; born at Oxford, May 2, 1811; fitted for college at Wrentham Academy; student at Harvard College; teacher at "Fitchburg High School" in the Academy, 1832; died in Fitchburg, June 12, 1835.

Rev. William Cushing, A. B.—1833-4, and 1836.

Son of Edmund and Mary (Stearns) Cushing of Lunenburg; born in that town May 15, 1811; attended public schools there and fitted for college at Cambridge, under the instruction of private tutors, one of whom was C. C. Felton, afterwards President Felton of Harvard University; graduated at Harvard University, 1832; student in Harvard Divinity School, 1832-3; editor for a short time in 1834 of a weekly religious paper printed in Fitchburg, called "The Christian Messenger;" taught seven terms in Fitchburg Academy, 1833-4, and one term, 1836; a private school for boys at Lowell, 1834-6; in a private school for boys, Boston, 1836-7; student at Harvard Divinity School, 1837-9, graduating 1879; preached for short periods at Charlemont, at Calais, Me., (where he was ordained as an Evangelist, June 10, 1840) and at Milwaukee, Wis.; returning from the West, he supplied several months in Lunenburg; then taught the High School in Cambridge—first ward—nearly two years; then the Westford Academy about two years; while at Westford began to preach at Bedford and later removed thither, where he continued in all four years, keeping meanwhile and afterward a boys' family school; in 1857, removed to a farm in Clinton where he remained ten years, occasionally supplying pulpits; removed to Medford, 1867, and to Cambridge, 1868, where he has since resided; Assistant in Harvard College Library, 1868-78; since 1878 has been engaged in literary work for himself; in 1878, published an "Index to the North American Review" and in 1879 an "Index to the Christian Examiner;" has prepared a "Book of Initials and Pseudonyms," which awaits publication, and is now engaged upon his "Century of Authors;" married July 25, 1843, Margaret Louisa Wiley of Lunenburg; P. O. address, 18 Wendell street, Cambridge.

Mr. Cushing was assisted in the school by Miss Emily Gardner, a daughter of Mrs. Oliver Everett, who had previously taught a school for young ladies here; she died unmarried about ten years ago. He had also the assistance of his sister, Miss Caroline A. Cushing, born in Lunenburg, Nov. 1, 1815; teacher at Fitchburg Academy, 1834-6; private instructor in Otsego, N. Y., 1836-8; subsequently taught schools for girls in Lunenburg, Charlestown, N. H., Sterling and Fitchburg; visited Europe, 1875; resides in Lunenburg.

Rufus Campbell Torrey, A. B.—1836.

Son of John and Sally (Richardson) Torrey; born in Oxford, Feb. 13, 1813; fitted for college at Wrentham Academy; graduated at Harvard College, 1833: spent the next four or five years in Fitchburg, engaged mostly in teaching and editing a newspaper; teacher at Fitchburg Academy, 1836, and probably at other dates; wrote a history of Fitchburg in 1836, which was reprinted in 1865; in 1838, removed to Mobile, Ala., and for two years was engaged in teaching and studying law with Judge B. T. Harris; admitted to the bar, 1840; practiced his profession at Grove Hill, Ala., 1841-3; at Claiborne, Ala., 1843-82; Judge of the County Court, 1844-8; Grand Master of the R. & S. C. S. Mann—1842.

Probably son of Rev. Cyrus Mann, pastor at Westminster, 1815-1841; supposed to be the Cyrus Sweetser Mann, M. D., who graduated at Harvard Medical School, 1843.

Elizabeth King—1842.

Daughter of Col. Samuel King of Wilton, N. H.; with Miss Willis, had a school for young ladies in the Academy, 1842; married, July 15, 1844, Hon. Henry C. Whitman, then of Lancaster, Ohio, (see above); residence, Cincinnati, Ohio.

AMANDA MALVINA WILLIS—1842.

Daughter of Samuel and Cynthia Willis, born at Northbridge, June 22, 1819; educated at the Fitchburg Academy and South Boston Seminary; teacher of music at Miss Smith's Boarding School, Sudbury; and 1842 with Miss King at the Fitchburg Academy; married Nov. 26, 1846, John Brown, Jr.; P. O. address, Concord.

J. BROOKS BEAL—1842-3.

Of Scituate; teacher at Stow Academy just previous to 1842; at Fitchburg Academy, 1842-3.

STEPHEN HOLMAN, A. B.—1842-8.

Son of Stephen and Hannah Holman of Royalston; born there, Dec. 29, 1821; studied at Lynn, Worcester, Westminster and at Plainfield and West Killingly, Conn.; graduated at Williams College, 1840; teacher Winchester, N. H., 1840; Chesterfield, N. H., 1840-1; Gardner, 1841-2; Athol, 1841-2; Phillipston, 1842; Fitchburg Academy, 1842; meanwhile and subsequently studied law with Milton Whitney, Fitchburg; Holyoke, 1851-2; paymaster at Lyman Mills, Holyoke, 1853-60; treasurer of Holyoke Paper Co., 1860-6; treasurer of Holyoke Machine Co., since 1870; also at present treasurer of Deane Steam Pump Co., and Holyoke Foundry Co.; married April 12, 1853, Henrietta A. Richardson, formerly of Fitchburg; of his two children, Hattie P. and Charles R., the latter is now at Phillips Academy, Exeter, and expects to enter Harvard College in 1884; P. O. address, Worcester or Holyoke.

Mr. Holman was assisted in 1843 by MISS MARIA F. YOUNG, daughter of Joseph and Sophia Young; born Feb. 5, 1826, in Winchester, N. H.; student at New Salem Academy and at Mrs. Willard's Seminary, Troy, N. Y.; teacher in Fitchburg Academy, 1843; private instructor, Wytheville, Va., 1845-6; married (1) October, 1849, P. Hammatt Wright, who died 1856; married (2) 1858, John Mattoon; died July, 1868, in Northfield. Another assistant was Miss Emily Weld, daughter of Dr. ——— and Dorcas (Doubleday) Weld, who came from New Hampshire to Leominster, and thence to this city, and at one time kept a private school here; she died here in 1863. In 1846 he had the assistance of Charles Cummings, A. B., son of Thomas and Mary (Whitney) Cummings; born at Hollis, June 7, 1817; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1842; teacher at Abington one year; graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, 1846; teacher, Fitchburg Academy, 1846; Principal of Medford High School, 1846-67; married, April 4, 1848, Elizabeth L., daughter of Christopher Dyer of South Abington. In 1846, Mr. Holman was assisted also by Miss Mary Kimball of Rindge, N. H., whose sudden death is still vividly remembered. After teaching as usual in the morning, she ate dinner at her boarding place, ran up stairs and fell dead at the top. She was then about thirty years old.

Joseph Russell Gaut, A. M.—1846 or 7.

Son of Thomas and Lucy (Graves) Gaut; born at Westminster, August 8, 1817; fitted for college at Pepperell and Westminster Academies; graduated at Amherst College, 1842; teacher one year at West Brattleboro, Vt.; at Westminster Academy, six years; at Fitchburg Academy about 1846 or 7; and at other places in Mass.; bookseller at Philadelphia, Pa., 1853-73; in latter year retired from business; resided in Moorestown, N. J., for several years; died from consumption at Philadelphia, April 6, 1875; married June 4, 1846, Ellen E., daughter of Stephen Greenleaf, 2d, of West Brattleboro, Vt.

Charles Emery Stevens, A. B.—1847.

Son of Hon. Boswell and Catharine Hale (Emery) Stevens; born in Pembroke, March 24, 1815; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1835; read law with his father; graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, 1839; taught at Hinsdale, Worthington Academy, Fitchburg Academy, 1847; Barre High School; edited New Hampshire Statesman at Concord, N.
